BIRTH: July 11, 1953
DEATH: May 7, 1966

Foreword

Today's teen seems mildly obsessed with his probe to discover exactly who---or what---he is. Some adolescents like to see themselves as "the original swinger", trimmed in mini-skirts, hip riders, bell bottoms, and "mod" earrings identical to everyone else's. At the opposite margin of society lies those viewing themselves as future sculptors of the world. These teens bathe themselves in the preparations of study, stoicism, and future plans.

Pulling even harder at our unity is the specialization in goals suddenly demanded of each individual in his search for success. Instead of merely directing ourselves in the general direction of graduation, we are now faced with a choice from a kaleidoscope of careers.

The varied interests and goals within the class of "67" are united in presenting to you the accomplishments of our high school years, a review of ourselves as we are now, and a hint of how we may be viewed in the future.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

ARMSTRONG SCHOOL DISTRICT ADMINISTRATION

SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

C. Nicely Hanner
Superintendent

The 1966-67 school year of the Armstrong School District is truly one of change. On July 1, 1966, the administrative structure of our school system was changed from twenty-five (25) school districts to a single school district. This is a school system made up of approximately 12,000 children, housed in twenty-eight (28) elementary centers and seven (7) secondary centers, spread over an area of 516 square miles, and serving parts of three counties.

During this, our formative year, the most important task is to mold the Armstrong School System into an efficient operating unit. This in itself is no small task when you realize that the policies of fourteen (14) former administrative units must be brought together to guide a single school system.

This year we are also attempting to enrich our curriculum by providing two (2) Mobile Reading Laboratories and one (1) Mobile Space-Science Laboratory. The Reading Laboratories will be assigned to each attendance area for a six-week period. They will be staffed by a reading specialist and equipped with all modern devices used in remedial reading instruction. The Space-Science Laboratory will be assigned to each high school center for a period of approximately six weeks. Slides, movies, and text material combine with a planetarium and moon model to form a space-science program comprehensive enough for navigational study.

A Mobile Instructional Materials Center, which is in the planning stage, would make available a wide variety of instructional materials and resources, including books, filmstrips, records, etc., to children in the elementary schools of our district. Well-organized and planned experiences involving these materials can do much to enlarge cultural horizons, to develop positive attitudes toward reading, and to provide a means for personal satisfaction and enjoyment.

A Curriculum Media Center is being established to provide curriculum materials for the disadvantaged and/or low achiever. The staff will have the responsibility of providing teaching and learning aids which will supplement and enrich the regular school curriculum. A staff will be provided to work with these children on an individual basis or in small groups. This, in turn, would reduce the teaching load of the regular teaching staff.

The problems are many and varied. They cannot be solved immediately. They can and will be solved if each of us devotes our time and energy to a single purpose--the creation of a school system that has as its main goal the welfare of our children.

Mr. Beitsch

Intelligent curiosity is as individualistic as thought. It is as sensitive as intuition and requires meticulous discretion. Its hallmark is the incessantly probing mind, examining into what is right and just. Its companion is integrity, for intelligent curiosity cannot and does not live with inaccurate reporting of what one's conscience dictates as right. Freedom and good society are the fruits of intelligent curiosity and can never be had without it.

May the methods, attitudes, ideals and knowledge, which you have acquired, serve you well in your search for truth.

My sincere congratulations are extended to you at this time of graduation.

Mr. Peden

Mr. Peden

As a token of appreciation, we, the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred Sixty Seven, dedicate this yearbook to two of our teachers, Mr. Jack Quinn and Mr. Gerald Peden, our physical education and world cultures instructors, respectively. They, through their diligent work, have earned our respect. Mr. Quinn, has actively helped us in sports; both intramural and varsity. He has directed gym shows which were outstanding, and loves to get into the greasepaint. Likewise, Mr. Peden, brings cultures of the ages to life, and is also building our basketball team. He has initiated the attendance of our boys at clinics for basic basketball skills.

Both of these men believe education of mind and body is important as a preparation for life.

Dave,
Good luck to a real
neat guy and good friend.
Never forget all the fun we have had, especially the basketball ball games (fight too) and French Class.
With a brain like yours I know you'll go far. When you reach the top, don't forget me.

Terry
